The Pennsylvania Inspection party, headed by General Manager Loree, reached the city at 4:10 p. m. yesterday and spent two hours in going through the shops and looking over terminal improvements now in progress at Indianapolis. At dark the three trains they travel in were run on to the sidetracks in the South-street yards, where the party remained until 11 p. m., at which hour the trains left for Vincennes. The party will this morning start northward, inspecting the Vincennes line on their return, reaching Indianapolis at 2:10 p. m. The officials speak in glowing terms of the condition of the Panhandle lines between Pittsburg and Indianapolis, nearly 250 miles of the distance now being double track, and a number of long sidings have been put in to further increase the mileage of practically double track. In the two weeks ending Oct. $150,000-wouldn't be a drop in the bucke against Mark Hanna's $25,000,000, which Bryan says he got from the trusts. It is true that he gets a few palace car tips from people who come to see him while the engine is taking water at the tank, but not enough of them to justify a division with the finance committee. It costs him big money to travel on a special train, to live population in the face as he rattles along ### an increase this year of 306 trains. On A TAX ON GOOD WILL

ARGUMENT ON DEMURRER IN THE NEWS TAX CASE.

Merrill Moores for the State and Ferdinand Winter for the News-Other Court Cases.

Argument on demurrer in the suit of the Indianapolis News against State Auditor Hart to enjoin him from collecting taxes assessed against the plaintiff's plant by the State Tax Board was heard by agent of the Big Four, with headquarters Judge McMaster, of the Superior Court, yesterday. The real contention is whether He said: "There is more business in sight goodwill can be taxed. The News was assessed at $47,000 one year and $45,000 another, and in each instance the assessment was raised by the tax board to $400,-000, appeals having been taken from the county board by Frank McCray. The plaintiff alleges that the good will of the business was taxed contrary to the Constitution. As the question of good will is the point on which the litigation rests the decision will have much bearing in taxing all individual and partnership business. Deputy Attorney General Merrill Moores, in his argument for the State, contended that good will can be taxed, that it is a part of the valuation of the property, and according to the Constitution, taxation is based upon valuation. He says that in determining the value of a business the name of the paper is to be considered, its circulation, advertising business, and everything from which profits can accrue cutside of the tangible property is property and is taxable. He cited decisions in the New York and United States Circuit Courts, which held that good will is part of a property and is taxable. He also presented decisions showing that the names of stores, hotels, breweries and all businesses, when they figure in the financial success of the firm, are considered part of Peck, Pittsburg; W. C. Loree, Indianapo-lis; P. A. Bonebrake, Logansport; C. H. vision. It is stated officially that the pas-ship dies the good will of the property in THE SAFETY BOARD EXONERATES which he was interested is held as assets, appraised, and his heirs receive their share on such appraisements.

The good will of corporations is taxed, he said, and that good will is recognized as The Charges Were Preferred by John a part of the capital stock. To thus tax the good will of a corporation and let the individual and partnerships escape, he said, would be unjust

As to the ability of the assessors to as-certain the value of the good will of a newspaper, he said, it is no more difficult than to estimate the value of a seat in a stock exchange, an abstracter's books, race horses, diamonds, paintings and sculpture. The valuation of these, he said, depends upon the financial estimate placed upon the nature of the property by the owner and not upon the amount of canvas. weight of the stone or the mere fact that a horse is a horse.

Ferdinand Winter, for the plaintiffs, said the tax board had no jurisdiction from the fact that the county board had not raised or lowered its first assessment, and under those circumstances the case could not be appealed. He said only the good will of orporations can be assessed and taxed, and that there is no machine by which an assessor can find the value of the good will of a newspaper or partnership. He also said it was discrimination to attempt to collect taxes from his clients and let other

Either side will likely carry the case to the Supreme Court, and Mr. Moores said he would not be surprised to see it go to the United States Supreme Court.

HIM AFTER A TRIAL.

Reddington-Can Examine Consumers' Books.

Captain Charles F. Dawson, of the police the Board of Safety yesterday after his trial on the charges filed against him by John H. Reddington, of the city engineer's office. Reddington claimed that he was standing at the corner of Meridian and Washington streets the night of the allegorical parade during the carnival, and when Captain Dawson rode up to drive the crowds back so that the parade could pass Reddington grabbed the bridle of Dawson's horse to prevent himself being injured, and the captain struck him across the face After the evidence was heard in the case the board ordered the following to be entered upon the minuts: "While the board deplores that any one should be injured by a police officer in the discharge of his duty, the circumstances in the present case are such, in the opinion of the board, as to exonerate Captain C. F.

Dawson of all blame." Captain Dawson was represented by Martin M. Hugg, while David J. Hefron aption to open a road in Wayne township peared for Reddington. There was no discourt, yesterday, after the jury had re- whether it was justifiable. Reddington's witnesses were W. B. Keller, J. B. Myers and P. J. Riley. They claimed the act of Captain Dawson in striking Reddington was uncalled for. Reddington claimed he witness stand, nothing but the best-natured at the corner named, and when Captain from his feet, and he was compelled to take hold the horse's bridle to save him-Captain Dawson testified that the mountwas no danger to any one, as their horses were under control. After Reddington had grabbed the bridle Dawson claims he ordered him to let loose, and when he refused he struck him with the whip. He said he did not recognize Reddington befused to accept an apology. George W. Powell and Gen. James R. Carnahan, to-
